None Too Good(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., June 21.—Welfare Director Margaret M. Allman ordered today that Oakley Spaght, assistant director, investigate the death of Joseph Miller, Youngstown paroled convict, who died less than two weeks after he was released from Mansfield reformatory.Veterans Ask Action
The investigation was requested by the 37th division, Veterans association of Youngstown, which complained of "indifference" on the part of reformatory officials in caring for the physical well-being of inmates.

Spaght probably will begin his investigation next week and Mrs. Allman said she would go both to the reformatory and Youngstown in an effort to get all the facts in the case.

The welfare department was ordered to make the investigation by Governor Davey after he received the complaint of the veterans organization.

Miller was paroled on May 29 and died in Youngstown about two weeks later.

Facilities None Too Good
Superintendent Arthur Glatke of the reformatory said Miller was in good physical condition so far as he knew when he left the prison.

Mrs. Allman declared that hospital facilities at the reformatory were none too good and also said that only one physician was available to administer the needs of more than 3,000 convicts.

He said he would go to Santa Catalina island where Gable is on location. The minister has made several unsuccessful attempts to reach Gable.

In the event he is unable to meet the actor personally, Mr. Williams has composed a 10,000-word prayer to leave for Gable.

PLANE MISHAP
PROBE STARTEDFamily of Three Killed
When Army Ship Fails
In Takeoff

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—Two official agencies sought today to determine the cause of an accident in which a United States army plane smashed into a parked automobile and killed a family of three.

At March field an army board of inquiry went ahead with the investigation it began immediately after the crash yesterday afternoon, while in Los Angeles the coroner's office prepared to hold an inquest.

Victims of the accident were Daniel Kraus, 24-year-old carpenter; his wife, Freda, 23, an expectant mother, and their one-year-old daughter, Donna Mae.

Two of the three army fliers in the wrecked ship, Lieut. W. W. Pannis and Cadet T. R. Walsh, both of whom were only slightly hurt, were expected to appear before both the army board and the coroner's jury.

Lieut. George D. Campbell received a broken leg and possible internal injuries.

Witnesses said the huge ship rose a few feet off the ground on its takeoff, and suddenly careened to one side and struck the Kraus auto.

Build Addition To Laughlin Pottery

EAST LIVERPOOL, June 21.—Construction of a new brick and steel addition got under way yesterday at the Homer Laughlin China Co. The building project calls for a 45x120 feet addition to the No. 4 plant at Newell, W. Va. and will be used for straw storage purposes.

Installation of an automatic conveyor is also under way in the kilnshed of the No. 7 plant. Commonly known as an "iron horse", the conveyor, built of metal, is similar to a revolving platform on which the kilnplacers stand.

The building project, which will involve an expenditure of several thousand dollars, is expected to be completed within 30 days, Fred B. Lawrence, head of the North American Manufacturing Co. executive, said.

Excavation for the foundation has been started and more workmen will be employed as the structure progresses. Bricklayers and carpenters will be employed later.

The Laughlin Co., which has the largest pottery in the world, last year completed the modernization of the No. 5 plant, including the installation of new machinery and improved working facilities for employees.

CHAPIN'S MILLINERYMechanical Heart and Lungs Invented By Col. LindberghDevice Enables Surgeons To Remove Whole Organ and Keep It Alive IndefinitelyBy HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor.
NEW YORK, June 21.—The mechanical genius of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, switched to science, inaugurates a new cycle in medical progress announced today.

He has perfected a new mechanical heart and lungs at the Rockefeller institute, where he has been working for several years in seclusion of his own choosing.

It enables surgeons to remove a whole organ, such as kidneys, heart, spleen or glands from an animal's body and keep it alive indefinitely, growing independently, in an artificial chamber.

The mechanical heart furnishes artificial blood. It revives organs an hour after death of the animal from which they came.

Sought For 123 Years
This reaches a goal medicine has sought 123 years. The goal is to make whole parts of the body live in glass chambers where scientists could see them and learn at first hand how they fight disease and how they secrete the sinews of health.

Heretofore the handicap has been that the removed organs died—they caught bacterial infections just like a person. Lindbergh's new apparatus has wiped out the infections.

His part of the contribution is the mechanical side. He teamed with Dr. Alexis Carrel, and with him signed the announcement made in science. Dr. Carrel won the Nobel prize for achievements in keeping tissues alive outside the body. But this new work is in no sense the old tissue culture.

"Its techniques, as well as its purposes," the announcement said, "are quite different."

"Its ultimate purposes are the manufacture in vitro artificially of the secretions of endocrine glands, the isolation of the substances essential to the growth, differentiation and functional activity of those glands, the discovery of the laws of association of organs, the production in vitro and the treatment of organic and arterial diseases, etc."

To date 26 experiments have been made. They include kidneys, spleen, heart, thyroid gland, ovaries and suprarenal glands.

In only two did infections develop, and that was in the organ before removal. Thyroid glands were kept more than 20 days with pulsating arteries and active circulation.

With the organs were removed enough surrounding tissues and arteries to enable them to function. Ovaries and thyroids grew rapidly in their artificial boxes. One ovary developed signs associated with pregnancy.

Although this work is in no sense the artificial production of life, it shows that if scientists find out how to change non-living stuff into living, they can hope to maintain the life thus brought into being.

No description of Lindbergh's new pump was given.

SURVEY CHIEF

Col. Sherrill Urges Business Principles In Government

GOVERNOR DAVEY
AWAITING REPORTCommittee Calls On Citizens to Rise Against Mounting Costs(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, June 21.—The chief of Ohio's government survey believes that the application of proven business principles to state departmental administration will save the taxpayers "a good many millions of dollars."

Col. C. O. Sherrill, general chairman of the survey, who will present his final recommendations to Governor Davey about July 1, asserted that the business experts who handled the gigantic task had concluded that "some expenditures seem totally unnecessary, some appropriations are ineffectively administered. Some activities are conducted with admirable efficiency."

He cautioned that the survey "will be simply another survey unless the indicated measures are put into effect—at least the simplest and most obvious ones." An aggressive citizenry, he asserted, "can effect major economies and improvement in state government."

The immediate objective, he declared, is to save about $5,000,000 a year but this "would fall short of the major possibilities."

The text of the survey chief follows in part:

"The purpose of the Ohio government survey has for its aim an attack upon the tax burden at the roots, to determine what is done with public funds, to study the administration of state activities from the standpoint of good business practice and to consider whether the largest, reasonable measure of public wealth is being accomplished."

"The activities of the survey include administrative functions only, since constitutional limitations apply to the legislative branches, and the elective offices. The administrative activities studied and reported on, comprise about 143 separate bureaus and department operations—which staggering total is significant in itself. But all these are activities which carry on year after year, regardless of which party may be in power or what individuals may be in elective offices."

"The substance of the findings will make it apparent that application of proven business principles to state administration will save the taxpayers of Ohio—the stockholders in the business—a good many millions of dollars. Some expenditures seem totally unnecessary, some appropriations are ineffectively administered, some activities are conducted with admirable efficiency."

"The information derived from the survey can be put to constructive use as it becomes possible for the first time to submit to crucial analysis not only where state tax money goes, but how it is expended."

"The report and analysis of the survey with specific recommendations for immediate economies, will

Painless Tax

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 21.—All the big influential papers this morning are full of the "sock the rich." And you can tell from the tone of their voices they have been "socked." But as the scheme is mostly on inheritance it doesn't really hit 'em till they die, so I would call that the nearest to a painless tax that could be invented. You don't pay it till you die and you don't know it.

I would sure like to have seen Huey's face when he was woke up in the middle of the night by the president who said, "Lay over Huey, I want to get in with you."

EXPLORING

President Roosevelt's message to congress on taxes and redistribution of wealth had three obvious purposes. In the order of their importance they were:
to get votes, to get Huey Long, to get revenue.When the President talks about taxing wealth he is pleasing the multitudes who resent the existence of wealth. They may be wrong in believing they would be better off if great fortunes were broken up, but no politician would dare tell them they are wrong. To them, taxation is a means of destroying a class unpopular with them.Huey Long's share-the-wealth program is based squarely on a foundation of class strife. Without that appeal, the Louisiana senator is politically impotent as far as the national election is concerned.
President Roosevelt's tax message was a neat way of taking the wind out of Sen. Long's only partially filled sails.The tax reforms proposed by Mr. Roosevelt would produce more revenue—an indeterminate amount.
The revenue from inheritance and gift taxes, President Roosevelt advises, should be applied to reduction of the national debt, which is an exceedingly interesting idea. Significantly, that would not amount to redistribution of wealth. Neither would it reduce the vast national debt very rapidly.The graduated corporation income tax which the President proposes is primarily a tax on size. That is to say, its primary purpose is not to produce revenue but to further President Roosevelt's intention to use taxation as a weapon against concentrated wealth and power.There is, therefore, nothing that is new in President Roosevelt's recommendations. His message is important chiefly as a statement of policy and as a political appeal. The financial problem of the United States will not be solved by confiscatory taxes on large estates and incomes. The political problem of the Roosevelt administration and the accomplishment of its social purpose may be eased by such taxes, however.

DIVIDED SYMPATHIES

Gov. Davey is doing what taxpayers constantly implore public officials to do—cutting expenses. He is discovering in the process why more public officials do not cut expenses.For each item of expense he pencils out of the appropriation there is a shriek of agony from the department affected. The governor is warned he is doing irreparable damage. Thus, President Rightmire of Ohio State university says the institution cannot hold its place with other universities unless Gov.
Davey relents in his determination to pare $1,265,500 out of his budget.The governor has taken approximately nine million dollars from the budget so far. Apparently, he isn't ready to stop yet. He has given notice, furthermore, he will not sanction emergency appropriations to make up the reductions.Obviously, Gov. Davey would not have sung the "economy ax" unless he anticipated some political benefit. That charge has been made against him.
It is charged, moreover, that he permitted the legislature to make large appropriations so he could play the hero role by reducing them. He is accused of insincerity, of ruthlessness, of betrayal of the public interest, of destruction and of almost everything under the sun.Regardless of Gov. Davey's motives, regardless of the wisdom of some details of his economy drive and regardless of the entirely valid criticism of his action in many particulars, he is experiencing nothing that wouldn't be experienced by any executive who attempted to reduce public expenditures. There is no easy, sweet way to save money. If there were, President Roosevelt might have been able to keep his economy pledge.Gov. Davey will win some admiration and some contempt by his economy drive. If nothing happens, he will save Ohio a great deal of money. Perhaps it's time to remember that Ohio has been demanding that very thing. Did Gov. Davey make a mistake by taking the demand seriously?

THE STARS SAY

For Saturday, June 22

An interesting and eventful state of affairs is presaged by the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects.
While there is a promise of favors, preferment and substantial assistance from those in high places, accompanied by a stabilization of the fortunes and increased real possessions, also there may be gain through bereavement or at the behest of an elderly person or institution. Insurance comes under the actuating influences, but be particularly cautious in signing papers.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves confronted by a year of great importance, with events reacting propitiously on their fortunes and possessions, also with favors and substantial success from important persons, elders and old-established institutions. Bequests or insurance may figure, but sign all papers with care and be alert to wickery with large corporations.A child born on this day may have sound abilities and high ambitions but may need the encouragement of those in authority. It may gain by insurance.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK June 21—Thoughts while strolling:
When H. T. Webster's hair turns white, it will be like Mark Twain's unruly mop. Patricia Ziegfeld now a grown up lady. And Billie Burke younger looking than ever. A good definition of a columnist: sciolist.
Add popularity slumps: Baseball.Look alike: Mussolini and Roxy. Pierre Cartier is always dressed as though going some place important. Few writers seem so indifferent to money rewards as Don Marquis. And that may be the why of his excellence. All the familiar faces under the Astor marquee gone. Louis Mann. Dillingham, etc.Overheard: "I'm always spotted next to trained animals or midgets." City threnody: The cartons of earth for sale in the five and tens. Last of the romantic fiddlers. Joe Feyer. Suggestion for delicatesens—old fashioned apple butter savoring of wood smoke. No one can strut like Harry Richman.How many remember Edna Aug and her "Belle of Avenue A" song? Hope Hampton's corsage bill must run into important money. That sadly wistful goodbye smile of Barbara Hutton is haunting. Jimmy Savo helps fill the gap but the theatre has never been the same for me since W. C. Fields went cinema.Col. Ed Simms suggests a big white colonial porch and a tall mint julep. Picturesque name for a polo player: Laddie Sanford. What a three-sheeting the liner Normandie got. That McLarnin-Ross fight is becoming a $10-a-seat act. I'll wait and catch it at Loew's.George Ade used to tell a story apropos of home town enthusiasm for the famous. A man whose name appeared regularly on the front pages decided he would visit the scene of earlier days. When he arrived there was no one about the station but the sleepy old hack driver indulging the lordosis of his calfing. So he walked over and halooed: "Hello, Jim. Do you remember me?" The Jehu sat up a bit, opened his door and then was asked: "Do the people ever mention me around here?" He was told they did sometimes."Sometimes? Well what do they say when I'm mentioned?"

"O, they just laugh!"

Ewing Galloway, the photographer, went back to his home town after acquiring considerable celebrity that took him around the world. He had since leaving a poor boy nursed a violent hatred for a rich man's son who had snubbed him on many occasions.
He planned revenge. Upon arrival the first person to greet him and reach for his suitcase was this son. In the social unraveling of years, the fortune was gone and the fellow underfed and woe bygone had become the village hackman. Galloway started to step into the cab, then, changing his mind, climbed up and sat with the driver.Many lyricists believe the gangling hill-billy Pinky Tomlin is destined to surpass even the acknowledged master, Irving Berlin in the art of attaining the lilting lyric. Berlin's fitting of the phrase "Full of originality" to a bar of music is often classed as top by those who know. A line that sings itself! Tom-lin's keen ear for rhythm and fitting words to music is strikingly revealed in "The object of my affection can change my complexion . . ." Not so grand just to read but oddly lilting in a song.The illness of the communist propaganda oozes in unusual places. I notice in a book review of a sophisticated weekly that the critic, an active communist, drags in this line extraneously: "Those who think in the terms of a planned society." The inference being that only real thinkers do.Doubtless radicals have lined up a number of provocative writers for their side. But they dull their points to me in perpetually writing in terms of triple classification. No. 1—the capitalists. No. 2—the bourgeoisie. No. 3—the proletariat. Their first consideration in appraising anyone is: To which group does he belong? They seem totally unconscious that generation upon generation of un-Marxian idealists have keyed real Americans to a different tempo. Our proletarian of today is our bourgeois of tomorrow—how am I doing, Midge?—and the capitalist the day after. Few of our successful men achieved success by legacy. America doesn't want "social security" half as much as an unlimited chance to get to the top.

I want to tell you about Bell's palsy, or facial paralysis, as it is more commonly called. It is often confused with trigeminal neuralgia for in both disorders the facial Nerve is involved.

This form of paralysis is caused by some damage to the facial nerve.
As a rule it is the result of exposure to cold, but may follow a blow, with injury to the nerve.
When the nerve is sufficiently damaged the muscles which it serves are instantly paralyzed.The victim first has pain in the head, just below or behind the ear.
The pain comes on suddenly and appears just before or immediately after the paralysis. Because of the paralysis the sufferer is unable to control or use the involved muscles.
Pretty soon there will be observed a drooping of the affected side of the face. Since the muscles on the opposite side are not involved, the mouth is drawn to that side and also there is an upward puckering of the lips. Whistling, smoking and even talking may prove difficult.Bell's palsy is not a hopeless affliction. In the majority of cases the symptoms slowly disappear, without recovery may take from several weeks to several months. Of course where permanent injury to the nerve has occurred, the outlook is not so favorable.

Electricity Helps

I am often asked whether there is any special treatment for facial paralysis and other forms of nerve injury. In most instances recovery is more rapid and convalescence is hastened by the application of the high frequency electric current. This is given in the form of diathermy, but should only be used under the supervision of the physician.In certain cases beneficial results are obtained by the infra-red light, sunbaths and massage. The paralyzed muscle must be kept healthy and prevented from shrinking. This treatment can only be given by special exercises and manipulations under the supervision of one trained in this work.In addition to local treatment care of the diet is necessary. It is important to include in this a sufficient number of calories to maintain normal weight and health. Do not resort to self-medication. Use only those medicines and applications which are prescribed for you by your physician. Make every effort to improve the general health.

The White House grounds bear ample evidence to the fact that most American presidents have been ardent tree lovers. On the 18 acres which comprise the estate of the nation's First Family, there are 345 trees of 91 varieties. They have been transplanted from all parts of the United States and from foreign lands. Many of these trees were planted by the presidents themselves. John Quincy Adams planted the American elm that stands outside the president's bed

the horse chestnut, Harrison the oak, Jackson, true to his southland,

State Educator Explains Foundation School Bill

Traxler-Kiefer-Mathews Measure Is Designed To Equalize State's Educational Opportunities

By DR. D. T. SUTTON
(Written For The Associated Press)
(COLUMBUS, June 21.—The 91st general assembly enacted a school program which should guarantee the adequate educational advantages to the children of Ohio. During the regular session six bills were passed, which have now been signed by the governor, to remedy the financial ills which have accumulated in the school districts since the economic collapse of 1929.

The most important measure enacted is the Traxler-Kiefer-Mathews bill (H. B. 466). This act guarantees a foundation program of $45 for each elementary pupil and $75.00 for each high school pupil in attendance in the various school districts throughout the state. In addition to this guarantee, those schools having less than 180 pupils in average daily attendance receive a greater amount per pupil based upon the actual cost of operating such schools. A transportation and tuition program is guaranteed in addition to the foundation program in those districts where such services are essential parts of the public school system. As a result of this financial guarantee, the legislature, for the first time in the history of Ohio education in Ohio, has come to regard heretofore as an essential function. Heretofore the responsibility for financing an adequate school program has been placed upon the local school districts and those areas unable to obtain adequate school facilities were given equalization aid in much the same manner as alms are granted to a mendicant.

The number of pupils in attendance in the elementary schools in any district is multiplied by $30.00 and the number of high school pupils in attendance is multiplied by $45.00 to determine the minimum amount of state money to be paid to any district. This allocation represents the "flat distribution" and is to be apportioned to any school district regardless of the local levy for current school operation. If this sum plus the combined yield of three mills upon the property duplicate of the district does not equal the foundation program of $45 for each elementary pupil and $75.00 for each high school pupil in average daily attendance, with a correspondingly larger amount per pupil for those schools having less than 180 pupils in attendance plus the cost of an approved program of transportation and tuition, the district is entitled to receive an additional amount equal to the difference. Each one-room school is guaranteed a foundation program of $1,150 and each two-room school a corresponding program of $2,400. Simple elementary arithmetic provides the basis for computing the apportionment which each district receives.

Vote Necessary

Any district desiring a better school program than that guaranteed by the state under H. B. 466 may provide such services if the voters of the district desire. There is no limit placed upon the amount of support a local school district may give to its schools.

Certain misapprehensions seem to have arisen over the district reorganization amendments included in H. B. 466. This act delegates less power to the director of education in controlling the financial and reorganization affairs of school districts than he possessed under the old equalization law. Until H. B. 466 was enacted, the director of education was permitted to control closely the expenditures of approximately 800 school districts which were participating in state aid. Reorganizations could be ordered, salary schedules were fixed, purchase of supplies was approved, organization of transportation routes and payment therefor was checked, and the fiscal policies of local boards were supervised by the department of education. Moreover, under the old equalization law, the director of education possessed the authority to order the reorganization of any school district he desired. Under the new program, it is impossible for the director of education to order any reorganization except "by and with the consent of the state controlling board."

Moreover, the sections added as senate amendments to H. B. 466, dealing with rural reorganization, do not vest the director of education with any board administrative power. The right of remonstrance against any undesired redistricting or the creation of new school districts, which is given to the residents of school districts by the provisions of sections 4692 and 4763 of the general code, still exists. These sections were not repealed under H. B. 466, it is impossible for the director of education to withhold funds from a school district. If the residents of the school districts remonstrate against proposed territorial changes, it is no failure of compliance on the part of the board of education, and the board cannot be charged with the dereliction of duty. Furthermore, the director of education does not possess power to bar any district from participating in public school funds on grounds of this character or any other alleged non-compliance with the regulations established for the administration of the state public school funds by the laws governing this regulation. In no event can funds be withheld from any district for any reason whatsoever until and unless the action is approved by the state controlling board.

The five individuals jointly responsible with the director of education for apportioning the state public school fund are: The attorney general, the auditor of state, the treasurer of state, the chairman of the house finance committee, and the chairman of the senate finance committee.

Immediate Need Seen

The immediate need for this financial measure is evident. At the present time there are more than 10,000 unpaid school teachers in the state of Ohio. The Kiefer amendment to the foundation program bill provides for immediate payment of these teachers, many of whom have received no salary since January of this year. Just as soon as the computations can be completed and the certifications made by the department of education to the individual school districts, the teachers, the bus drivers and the other creditors of the school districts will be able to receive the money now due.

The greatest contribution of the foundation program law to public education in Ohio exists in the fact that it provides a stable and predictable source of income for the current operation of public schools. Heretofore no school district was able to determine the amount of money it might expect to receive from the education equalization fund. The new program provides a simple objective and readily ascertainable basis upon which state funds shall be allocated to the several school districts. Any local school official will be able to determine the amount of money his district may expect to receive.

Five other important financial measures were enacted by which the school finance situation could be remedied and stabilized. These include H. B. 405 (Mr. Wright), H. B. 437 (Mr. McCullough), H. B. 334 (Mr. Stacy), S. B. 149 (Mr. Lawrence), and H. B. 544 (Mr. Shaver).

H. B. 405 provides that a board of education in any school district may borrow from the anticipated proceeds of the sales tax in an amount not to exceed 50 per cent of the total distributions from the sales tax for the year 1935. This measure will provide specific help for those districts not participating in the education equalization fund, and yet unable to meet all current operating costs.

H. B. 437 provides that any taxing subdivision may vote debt service levies now inside the limitation outside by a majority of the votes cast at an election for this purpose. This measure is designed to permit local subdivisions to free the 10 mill constitutional limitation for operation of governmental functions.

H. B. 334 re-enacts the cigarette tax for the first 10 months of 1936. This revenue is to meet the payments required under the Kiefer amendment to the foundation program bill. The revenue from this source will be used to make payment to the districts participating in the education equalization fund as well as those districts unable to finance a foundation program for the year 1935.

S. B. 149 offers a different type of relief for debt requirements. It undertakes to make debt levies available for operating purposes by granting the right to any taxing subdivision to refund net bonds maturing in a succeeding year, to meet the operating deficits for the corresponding time. The tax which would be levied to pay off the bonds may thus be spent for operation. If not enough bonds mature, then an additional outside levy may be voted for one year by majority vote. This bill is an emergency measure and only applies to the years 1935 and 1936. This bill

ARRANGING ROOMS IS AN ART
Strive for Harmony as Well as Comfort Is Advice of Authority on Housing

EVEN IF we can't all fare forth and purchase new furniture and appointments, we can at least have the fun of rearranging our rooms, turning the furniture about and generally improving the appearance of the room that is tackled.

Even if all of us are fast becoming interior decorators as some waggish person has charged, what of it? We are certainly all the better for lessons in beauty and ingenuity in artistic perception, attributes that we perhaps never thought we possessed. So let's look around and see if we can't make our rooms more attractive and certainly more comfortable, without any expenditure, except that of time, thought and energy.

Dressing Table Right?

Look carefully at the bedroom. Is the dressing table placed so that we can really see ourselves as we should be seen, when we peer into the glass? Maybe it is against the wall, with a low chest in front of the window. Then we should change about and place the dressing table in front of the window, with the chest against the wall. Put a picture, a nice print or a delicate etching above the chest to maintain the proper balance and, if possible, place chairs on either side of the chest. The room should be much improved.

Of course, it is in the living room where we can work the most improvement. If your furniture is nice, your color scheme good, don't be content with pictures that have ornate frames. We have seen charming rooms ruined by this touch, even if the home-maker was proud of the fine old frames with their lavish ornamentation.

Fancy Cords for Frames

Then there are the fancy cords that so often go with this type of frame. Here's one place where it would be wise to spend money and have all the pictures re-framed simply and ably. When properly hung and balanced without cord or wire showing, your room will look ever so much nicer, more gracious, and much cooler in summer. Pictures are an ornament, it is true, but only when properly framed and hung with a due regard for the room.

Now let's meander over to the mantel and see if we can't clear off the accumulation of ornaments and what-have-you that seem to find their way to a shelf that should be reserved for beauty and harmony.

The artistic soul will strike a medium between the mantel that is so chock-full or badly treated that it unbalances the rest of the room and the beauty of the fireplace.

ACCEPTED by Science and the American People

Laboratories have devoted years of research to discover the facts about bran. These tests show that Kellogg's All-Bran is a natural laxative food for normal people.

As a result, All-Bran has been accepted by the American Medical Association Committee on Foods, and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Millions of Americans use All-Bran to correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. For All-Bran supplies generous, mild "bulk," which continues to be effective when used for months. All-Bran also furnishes vitamin B and iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

How much better than taking patent medicines! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Arrange for Comfort

If you do want to spend a little money, search long and earnestly until you find one or two beautiful pieces that are just right. And remember that a nicely-framed picture is often better than a gaudy mirror.

If the living room is filled with plenty of furniture, it is a good idea to re-arrange things for more comfort. Move tables with lamps to make groups with overstuffed chairs and sofas. Instead of a large sofa in front of the fire, place it to one side and balance the other side with chairs and a table. If there is a desk or secretary, be sure that it is so placed that the person using it receives proper window light.

Beet Growers Hear Of New Payments

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A satisfactory agreement with officials of the farm administration sugar section for increased benefit payments to sugar beet growers on 1934 and crops is near at hand, Charles M. Kearney, president of the National Beet Growers association, said today.

Kearney would not, however, announce any figures. The North-western Ohio sugar beet crop is valued this year at $500,000.

Crime Cost High

SANDUSKY, June 31.—Frazier Reams, Lucas county prosecutor, told the Sandusky Rotary club yesterday that the crime problem is costing the nation $12,000,000,000 a year while education costs only $3,000,000,000.

A "Sole" Diamond

HICKORY, N. C., June 21.—Q. E. Heman, Hickory architect, saw something gleaming in the sole of his shoe. He plucked it out and took it to a jeweler who pronounced it a perfectly good diamond.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 21.—Grain prices averaged lower early today after a show of firmness at the outset. Corn started 1-4 off to 3-8 up, Sept. 76 1/2, and then receded.

Will Abyssinian Campaign Repeat Destiny of Alfonso?

History Proves Odds Against European Forces In African Engagements; Sheikh Discusses Situation In Morocco

LONDON — Mussolini's venture in Abyssinia is in many respects comparable to the Spanish campaign against the Riffs in Morocco in 1919.

Ex-King Alfonso of Spain attributed the loss of his throne to the successful outcome of that campaign which weakened his regime and detracted from his popularity. In sending his forces against the troops of Haile Selassie, it is risking a reversal similar to that which preceded the downfall of Alfonso.

Even the French colonials, troops experienced in desert warfare, had themselves pushed to the limit when they were pitted against Abd-El-Krim in Morocco. The Moroccan venture and its consequences was discussed recently by Sheikh Mustafa L'Raisuni, chief of Morocco, while he was in London on his way to visit his sister and her husband, Abd-El-Krim, political prisoners of the French.

Ex-King Alfonso told me a few months ago in Rome," said Sheikh Mustafa L'Raisuni, "that he made the greatest mistake in his life when he consented to wage that war against my country. He attributed the overthrow of his throne to its unsuccessful issue.

Charges French Treacherous In my opinion, however, it was weak government that eventually lost him his throne. I hate bloodshed," Sheikh L'Raisuni continued. "I was obliged to take up arms in 1913 to repulse the onslaught of the Spaniards, who had intended to capture the city of Al Kasar. I had then as a sort of A. D. C. to a father who was sheriff. We gave the invaders a good run."

Speaking of Abd-El-Krim, Sheikh L'Raisuni said: "My brother-in-law, whom I am on my way to see, was the victim of a despicable treachery on the part of the French. The French leader had asked my brother-in-law to surrender and promised that no harm would come to him and my sister.

Abd-El-Krim believing him, and giving up a lamentable business, stipulated only to find himself a prisoner of the French with his family. They are now in Reunion island and have been there since 1913, but of what use? After long years, I have obtained permission from the French government to see him and my sister.

Riffs Never Bought Guns Do you know that we Riffs have bought a gun?" Sheikh L'Raisuni asserted. "It would be a disgrace if one of us owned a gun that had not belonged, at one time or another, to our invaders. In fact, more guns in Morocco than food. And the Riffs are good shots.

Can tell you we take no wounded prisoners because when we shoot at the center of the forehead and it would be unusual if missed. I myself can write my name on the wall, 30 yards away, with a revolver, and I am by no means in the first flight of marksmen among the Riffs.

be delivered to the governor beginning about July 1. After giving the governor the time necessary to digest the report, it will be released to the public press to business and civic organizations.

"Concerning the benefits that can reasonably be expected it would be foolhardy to attempt to reach the ultimate objective in the first thrust. So the first-line objective is the immediate saving of about $5,000,000 made up from various increments which can be most readily and most quickly put into effect. That would be a modest percentage of the total outgo, but it is the sales tax equivalent of $150,000,000 of retail sales. While such an accomplishment would make the survey worthwhile, to be content with these economies which we believe can be effected, even under the present set-up, would fall short of the major possibilities and would give no assurance of permanent benefits. A recent investigation by the Ohio tax commission has indicated to the governor that the tax well is rapidly being drained. Ohio citizens at this time can exert strong pressure for the control of the rapidly increasing tax burden."

2 Convicts Escape From Illinois Pen

JOLIET, Ill., June 21—Confederates waiting in a fast automobile sped away today with three convicts from the Illinois state penitentiary here after the trio had eluded guards while at work outside the prison walls.

The men who escaped were Jack Ellis, 26, Vernon Guthrie, 32, and George White, 25, each sentenced to serve from one to ten years in the prison for grand larceny committed in Chicago.

Lack 40 Votes

Filibuster Saves Shell-Shocked Vet From Leap to Death

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, June 21—A 45-minute one-man filibuster against death from 300 feet above the city's busiest intersection saved the life of a shell-shocked war veteran, although today he branded himself a "fool" for not jumping.

Registered as William L. Hayden, 47, jobless for a year, he was held for observation in General hospital.

He owes his life to Carl Anderson, air line traffic manager, and William L. Burke, a newspaperman who was talking with Anderson in the latter's office when Hayden, poised for his leap on an over-ledge of a balustrade stepped before a widow.

Anderson talked of the weather, fishing, flying, told him he "better come inside, it's safer."

"I used to be in a circus," Anderson quoted him. "I don't mind the altitude." Once Hayden asked for a drink of water, and got it after promising not to jump, at least for the moment.

Horried hundreds watched below. Burke had called his paper and photographers rushed to the scene, but Hayden, didn't want his picture taken and objected strenuously.

Finally Anderson, with Burke holding fast to his legs, managed to lean far out and grab Hayden. Together they hauled him to safety.

Taken to the hospital, Hayden expressed regret he didn't jump. "What a fool I was not to," he argued. He explained his preference for death by saying he had lost his wife, his job and his property, all within the last year.

Funeral Today

COLUMBUS, June 21—Honorary pallbearers at the funeral here today of Dr. Joseph Villiers Denney, 73, Professor Emeritus of English at Ohio State university, who died Wednesday, were to include Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State, Alexander Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, and Dr. J. Phillip Schneider of Wittenberg college.

Miss Stull Leaves Mine to Pick Fruit

CADIZ, O., June 21—Miss Ida Mae Stull, 32, is not digging in her coal mine this summer. She is picking cherries and getting ready to build a two-story house on her farm.

But Miss Stull hopes to get back in the mine in the fall and she doesn't think much of the recent action of the international labor conference at Geneva. The conference announced its opposition to female labor in coal mines.

Miss Stull was barred last winter from working in her mine by the Ohio bureau of mines. Her suit for damages and loss of business is scheduled for hearing next week.

Attorney General John W. Bricker made a ruling last which allowed her to resume work in the mines.

14 Judges Ponder Hauptmann's Plea

TRENTON, N. J., June 21—Bruno Richard Hauptmann began a new ordeal of waiting today while 14 judges pondered his plea for a new Lindbergh kidnapping trial.

Not until late September or early October will the court of errors and appeals, the state's highest, give its answer to the defense charge that the state secured Hauptmann's conviction by means of "legal gymnastics."

Even if the court upholds Attorney General David T. Wilentz in his claim that the evidence against Hauptmann was "overwhelming and unanswerable," there remains the last appeal to the United States supreme court which defense attorneys have said they will surely take.

"Electric Glove" for Policemen Invented

NEW YORK, June 21—A "policeman's electric glove," which is said to incapacitate a person without injuring him, is being demonstrated here. Curio Henriquez Diaz, of Havana, Cuba, exhibiting the glove to police, said the idea of the glove was born of Ohio mill riots in 1930.

Potters And Dairies Win Class A League Games On Thursday

Salem China Team Makes Trades Class Its Victim, 12 to 3, While Smith Creameries Battle Washingtonville To Win, 8 to 6

ATHERING 15 hits from the Trades Class hurler, W. Miller, the Salem China softball team, trounced the Trades Class, 12 to 3, in a Class A league game Thursday evening at Centennial park.

The Potters scored in every inning but the second, as the losers got four hits for three runs, darkened by eight errors. In the last inning the Trades Class came through for two.

Scoring five runs in the first crack at bat, the Smith Creameries won from the Washingtonville team, 8 to 6, in the other Class A loop tilt.

With a 5 to 1 lead at the start the Dairies were tied in the second when Washingtonville did a little scoring of its own and sent four runs home on plate. One run in the third and two more in the fourth, however, gave the Dairies a safer lead. Washingtonville made a final effort in the seventh inning when another run was scored.

Hildebrand and F. Brudery in the pitchers box for Washingtonville, bowled the Smith team 7 hits. King held the losers to four.

The Baptists tumbled yesterday at Centennial park when the Trinity team staged a four-run rally in the last two innings to win, 4 to 3, the other church league contest, the Columbians were thrashed badly by the Friends team, 13 to 6. Summaries:

OHIO AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY BEGINS MONDAY

"Simon Pures" to Battle At Cincinnati; Defending Champ Out

(By Associated Press) CINCINNATI, June 21 — The tough terrain of Kenwood Country club will be the big barrier in the path of Ohio's outstanding amateurs here next week as the "Simon Pures" launch their annual tournament for the state championship.

With Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., of Cleveland, winner in 1934, having decided not to play, the gate is wide open for a new champion, but the coming title-holder faces a week of play over one of the most exacting courses in the country.

The field is expected to approximate 175 players, the largest number since 1932 when 181 started at Akron Portage. Of the starting field, 32 will be from the public links ranks. The "pay-as-you-play" squadron will meet at the local Ridgewood course for 72 holes of medal play Saturday and Sunday to decide the public links champion.

Pro-Amateur Event

Monday's program at the Kenwood club features a pro-amateur championship event, with no definite starting times. Regular play will be launched Tuesday morning when the big amateur field shoots the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifier. The second 18 will be played Wednesday, with the low 32 falling into the championship flight. Other flights have been arranged for all entrants.

Match play gets under way Thursday, and all matches except the finals for the championship will be completed by Friday evening. The championship will be decided next Saturday, over 36 holes.

Despite the fact the champion has abdicated his throne because of the stress of business, the annual classic has attracted a classy field. Among the late entrants are those representing Mansfield, Coshocton, Shelby, Kent, Swanton, Middletown, Lancaster, East Liverpool, Steubenville and Massillon clubs.

Kepler Enters Again

Bob Kepler, 1931 state champion and former Ohio State team captain, who tied for the state open crown last year only to lose in the playoff, has filed his entry. Clyde Mumma, another Daytonian, regarded as one of the longest hitters in golf, also will play.

Jack Holloway of Heather Downs Country club, Toledo, and R. A. (Bob) Stranahan of Inverness golf club, Toledo, will carry most of the hopes of the northwestern section. Stranahan participated in the recent British amateur which Lawson Little won for the second straight year.

R. L. Wintringer of Steubenville Country club, an ace of not so long ago, is coming back to the golfing ways this year, as is Joe Wells of East Liverpool, twice winner of the state amateur crown.

Johnny Florio of Columbus, another two-time winner, and always a threat in the tourney, is entered. His brother Tony, a fine golfer in his own right, will seek the public links title in Saturday and Sunday's play.

Bob Servis of Miami Valley Country club, Dayton, runner-up last year, winner of the crown in 1933, and runner-up in 1932, is expected to file his entry soon.

California Squad is Favored In N.C.A.A. Track Tourney

(By Associated Press) BERKELEY, Calif., June 21 — Ohio State's track and field team, listing the great Jesse Owens and Charles Beetham, apparently stands the only chance of overtaking the powerful University of Southern California squad in the national collegiate Athletic Association classic opening here today.

Owens, the Negro performer of the Buckeyes, has removed all doubt about his entering four events. He will pit his speed and endurance against the best the nation offers in the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 220 low hurdles and the broad jump. Some doubt had existed whether he would run the barrier event.

Beetham is a leading threat in the half-mile run.

From all indications, Dean Cromwell's Southern Californians, already champions by a wide margin in the intercollegiate A. A. A. this year, were destined to practically walk off with team honors among the 251 athletes from more than 80 schools.

Of the 23 Trojans entered, every one rated better than a mediocre chance of winning points. Without taking a first, something very unlikely, U. S. C. still could win all.

Joe Louis Expected To Thrash Carnera In Ring On Tuesday

At Least That's the Widespread Opinion; Detroit Negro Has Reputation For Administering Knockout Wallops

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 21 — The expectation that Joe Louis, sensational Negro pugilist, will reduce huge Primo Carnera to a punch-riddled heap in the ring at Yankee stadium Tuesday night seems to be widespread among Metropolitan fistic followers.

It is true that Louis has a great punching record and that the cash customers are being lured by the prospect of modified Mayhem. It is well to bear in mind, however, that Barney Ross was confident of knocking out Jimmy McLarin, and Max Baer was sure he would put Jimmy Braddock to sleep inside a half-dozen rounds. There was not even a knockdown in either fight.

Louis' reputation for administering knockout wallops to his opponents is such that he may handicap himself by trying too hard and too soon to bring down the giant Italian.

For all his rapid and spectacular rise, Louis lacks experience. His record of 18 knockouts in 22 professional fights within a year is impressive until the list is examined. It does not include many victims with a familiar names.

Carnera, of course, is a difficult target to miss inside the ring. He is apt to become flustered under heavy fire, and his chin has a manifest weakness when solidly hit. But for all his erratic pugilistic course, Primo has improved his defensive ability and shown rare gameness. Max Baer had the Italian on the floor 11 times but could not keep him there.

YANKEES' MAIN COG IS ALLEN

Johnny Shows Them His Bad Arm Is No Longer Ineffective

BY ORLO ROBERTSON, Associated Press Sports Writer

Many reasons have been advanced as to why the New York Yankees lead the American league pack by five and one-half games, not the least of which is Johnny Allen, the man who came back.

His arm went bad early last year, with the result he was offered a contract calling for $1 a year until he showed Boss Joe McCarthy that he had regained his old-time effectiveness.

Stops Detroit, 5-2.

The statistics tell the remainder of the story. Johnny has chalked up six victories against two defeats and ranks second only to Vito Tamulis among the hurlers on the team that boasts such stars as Lefty Gomez and Charlie Ruffing.

He stopped the Detroit Tigers yesterday with five hits as the Yankees turned back the circuit champions for the third straight time, winning 5 to 2.

Young Joe Sullivan hit Bill Dickey on the head and he had to be carried from the field. An x-ray examination showed only a slight concussion, however, and the veteran catcher is expected back in the lineup within a few days.

The Cleveland Indians climbed over the Chicago White Sox into second place by trouncing the Washington Senators 8 to 6, while the pair here were dividing a pair with the Philadelphia Athletics. A home run by Ralph Winegarner, pinch-hitting in the eighth, started the Indians on a three-run rally that gave them victory.

PARKS TAKES 74 AT E. LIVERPOOL

National Open Champ Exhibits Golf Wares In Special Match

EAST LIVERPOOL, June 21 — Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, new national open champion, teamed with Perry Delvecchio of Greensburg, former western Pennsylvania open title holder to defeat Joseph M. Wells, former Ohio amateur champion, and his fellow townsman, Floyd Delvecchio, 2 and 1, in an 18-hole best ball exhibition golf match here Thursday.

The battle featured the program at the East Liverpool Country club's second annual field day and was played over a difficult nine-hole course which was a stranger to the national champion.

The disadvantage was evident during the first round, when Parks was off on his second shot. However, his long drives and splendid work on the greens saved him in good stead. He took a 74.

A stiff cross wind also proved a handicap to the golfers. They were followed by a gallery of 500.

LEGALIZED "BOOKIES" CHICAGO, June 21 — Chicago "bookies" and they are legion, today awaited only the governor's signature on a bill legalizing handbooks before they can operate in the open.

● Now that crude rubber costs are creeping up, get the habit of buying tires that can always be depended upon to be right regardless of changing conditions.

● Remember, when crude rubber was $1.20 per pound, General was the only company to announce the policy of using no reclaimed rubber whatever—and it has been the only company to reiterate that top-quality principle year after year.

● Never an ounce of reclaimed rubber in carcass or tread, no matter how high crude rubber prices go or what the temptations to cheapen.

● Be a General Tire user—thousands change over their new cars to Generals the minute they get them. Get the General Tire habit. Traditionally safe!

● Always the latest style first in Generals. The line that has contributed more new developments in tire progress than any other line since the 3500 mile fabric tire days.

● General built the industry's first oversize tire—the first successful molded cord—the first low-pressure tire, which was the forerunner of the balloon—the first 6-ply balloon—the one and only Dual Balloon Blowout-Proof—and the only really successful big balloon—our Streamline Jumbo with wide rims and normal width tread, running on only 14 lbs. of air.

● See General's revolutionary new Corkscrew-Grip tread—the only type of tire that does not have straight lines, smooth sledrunner ribs.

● This is the tire that combines silence with non-skid safety—silence and long mileage without sacrificing non-skid. Always, with General, the thing that counts most in tires is "human mileage."

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brishane

TWO YOUNG BROTHERS, George and Alfred Monteverde, about to start a flight across the ocean from Coney Island to Rome, would ordinarily attract little attention. "Everybody flies across the ocean or attempts it."

The "different" thing about these young gentlemen is that each carries a small vial of deadly poison. "A few drops on the tongue and we are gone," says one.

The young men admit that flying across the Atlantic is no longer remarkable, but they consider it a sporting thing to do, so they fly. They think it would be not at all "sporting" to come down "1,000 miles from shore with no hope of being saved," so they take along the poison.

NAPOLEON IS said to have carried poison with him, although, until the very last, it would have seemed wiser for "the other fellow" to carry the poison, where Napoleon was concerned.

Perhaps the young men, if they fall in the ocean 1,000 miles from anywhere, will decide to wait and see rather than take poison. Thirteen men and women have lost their lives trying to fly from New York City to Rome but there is always hope for the brave.

Before long everybody will fly the ocean and children will ask if it is really true that people once traveled in little boats "way down there on the water."

SCIENCE DEALS with rebellion and riot to the advantage of established authority or established dictators.

In a Kansas mine 720 feet below the surface, convicts mutinied, said they would wreck everything, never come out. They built fires, the smoke being drawn out in the usual way by ventilating fans.

Warden Simpson reversed the fans, blew the smoke into the mine, and the army of rebellious convicts marched out peacefully.

Fear gas, and more severe gases if necessary, help the work of the police in riots.

As to Europe's dictators, it is hard to estimate the power that is given them by airplanes distributing poison gases, high explosives and machine gun bullets. As long as an eagle could dominate a dove, so long should a dictator govern his people from the air.

LEON TROTSKY, once Lenin's most important associate, head of Russia's armies, who made the fight for Russia against the rest of Europe, only to be driven out by Stalin, in Norway, his beard shaven to disguise him, and said to be suffering a nervous breakdown. Since his exile began, Trotsky has wandered from country to country, one after another repelling or expelling him. A Danish paper says Trotsky was expelled from France recently to oblige Stalin, who requested the favor of Laval. It is hard not to sympathize with a man, right or wrong in his beliefs, who has risen so high and fallen so low. You exclaim, with Isaiah, How art thou fallen from Heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! A photograph of Trotsky's powerful face, shaven, would be interesting. Real character cannot be seen until the beard goes.

SENATOR WAGNER says his labor bill does not "force a closed shop," would not prevent a man from working if he did not belong to a union. Not very long ago, a man could be put in jail for trying to establish a union or for going on strike. In England, under Henry II if an idle workman wandered

"Tiger Woman" to Join Husband After Release

In a few days the gates of San Quentin prison will open and Clara Phillips will have paid her debt to society for the hammer slaying of Mrs. Albert Meadows. And the man in the triangle, Armour Phillips, the "tiger woman's" husband, is expected to meet his wife as she emerges from prison for the first time in 12 years. They plan to take up life again, both hoping to atone for the past. It was in 1922 that Mrs. Phillips, then 24, lured Mrs.

Meadows, 20-year-old widow and ex-showgirl, to an isolated section of Los Angeles and beat her to death with a hammer. She was arrested in Tucson, Ariz., and returned for trial to Los Angeles where she escaped prison and fled to Honduras where she was recaptured. Found guilty of second degree murder, she was sentenced to from 10 years to life and recently received her parole after serving 12 years.

from his parish into another looking for work, without official permission, he was branded on the cheek with a red hot iron. Now to suggest that an ordinary citizen who prefers not to join a union—cannot be allowed to work is a long step from Henry II.

IN NEW YORK, two white boys, 11 and 13, and one colored boy, 13 years old, stole a gun from a policeman, killed a man whom they found asleep.

The Reverend E. J. Flanagan, telegraphs from Omaha:

"I have wired Magistrate Doyle at Jamaica pleading that the Damato brothers and Lisbon Lawrence, charged with murder, be not sent to prison. If these youth are sent to prison, their lives will be blasted. They are not criminals yet."

The Reverend E. J. Flanagan adds that if no other arrangement can be made:

"I will take them into my home for homeless boys at Boystown, Nebraska."

CLEVELAND—The metropolitan district of Cleveland has increased by 6,557 families in the past year, according to the fourth volume of the Real Property Inventory, just published. The current trend, real estate owners, construction companies and apartment building owners say, is away from families "doubling up."

HOME MAKING HELPS

PROPER WIRING IS SAFE AS WELL AS CONVENIENT

THE INSURANCE companies tell us that many fires can be traced to defective wiring and make-shift outlets. This is only too true, and so all of us should see that our houses are adequately wired with plenty of outlets and extra switches to control lights.

Apart from the safety of it, there will be pleasure in the convenience and comfort of such an improvement. You will wonder how you ever got along without it. Make a survey of your home today and see to it that all the wiring is in order. When you receive an estimate you will find that your electrician will do the job reasonably and that the outlay will be more than saved in no time.

Few houses or apartments, especially those built several years ago, have sufficient or properly placed outlets, and all can do with plenty more if the home is to be properly run. The kitchens and laundry especially should be given a full quota of outlets. Your percolator, toaster, mixing machine, iron, washing machine, dish-washing machine, vacuum—all these machines are found in the average home of today and all need outlets.

Don't switch in several outlets into one plug. The chances are that there will be short circuits and the wiring may become defective because of the load placed upon it at one point. Then occurs the possible hazard of fire. Make-shift wiring is deadly in its potential danger. Connecting cords under rugs and behind radiators invite danger and offer cause if too!

Check Over Equipment

Go over the cords and eliminate all those that are even the least bit frayed. Replace worn plugs and all parts of appliances that are worn out. Install a circuit breaker, that small, neat, unobtrusive appliance that takes the place of a fuse box. In case of a short circuit or an overloaded plug, it mechanically will disconnect the current and a flip off the switch.

Have a control switch installed so that the whole house can be illuminated at one turn of a switch.

Scotland Yard Chief

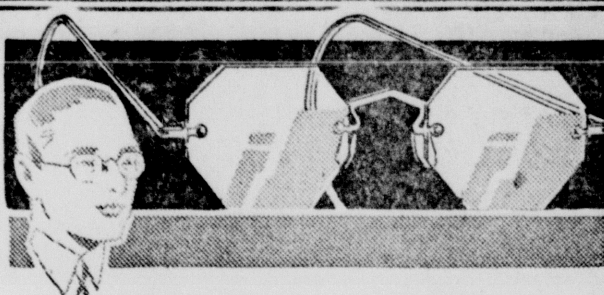

Sir Philip Game

Another airman, Sir Philip Game, has been called from retirement to succeed Air Marshal Sir Hugh Trenchard as commissioner of Britain's Scotland Yard.

If necessary, marauders and home-breakers won't like this notion. See to it that your rooms have an ample supply of switches to control ceiling lights, side lights and portable lamps.

And while you are on the job of making your home over so far as lights and outlets are concerned, why not install one of the new chimneys to take the place of jagged, rusty chimneys? Also that the exterior of your house is one of these illuminated house number fixtures. They are inexpensive, easily installed and your guests will benefit by them.

IT'S WISE TO MAKE JELLIES AS THE NEW FRUITS APPEAR

HOW MANY kinds of jam and jelly do you intend to make this summer? This question is really a challenge, for if you start at the beginning of the fresh fruit season and put up some from each crop, you could have at least 30 varieties on your pantry shelf by the time the first frosts of autumn show up.

What a satisfaction a full shelf of jelly and jam is in the winter! Just think of the fine raspberry jam for the children's bread, currant jelly to go with fowl—possibly a jam or jelly for every culinary occasion!

Of course, the only way to attain such a goal and have your preserves always on hand is to begin to make jellies and jams as the fruits appear on the market. Strawberries, cherries and raspberries come first, just begging to be made into jellies. Blackberries follow and very soon after them the whole berry family—huckleberries, blueberries, loganberries—can be added to the row of gleaming glasses. And don't let us forget the currants, the greengages, the plums and the peaches.

Make Small Batches

Thus, if you take advantage of each fruit as it comes in the market and is at its best, there isn't really much work to acquiring a jam closet which will be the pride of the house when cold weather comes. The best idea is to make a small batch at a time, about 10 or 12 glasses.

Here's a good, quick way of making red raspberry jam. To prepare the fruit, crush or grind about two quarts of fully ripe red raspberries, which should yield about four cups or two pounds of the fruit. Measure seven cups (three pounds) sugar and the prepared fruit in a large kettle. Mix well. Bring to a full rolling boil over a hot fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one minute. Remove from fire and stir in half bottle fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just five minutes to cool slightly and to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about ten glasses of six fluid ounces each.

Red Currant Jelly

For red currant jelly you should crush about four pounds fully ripe fruit and add one cup water. With the black currants you should crush about three pounds fully ripe fruit and add three cups of water. To prepare the juice bring mixture to a boil, cover, and simmer for 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag or cloth and squeeze out all juice. Measure seven cups (three pounds) sugar and the juice, which should be about five cups, into large saucepan and mix. Bring to boil over hot fire and at once add half bottle fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for about half a minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly immediately. Makes about 11 glasses of six fluid ounces each.

Save Time on Airport to Postoffice Trips

James Farley

When the new $5,000,000 Philadelphia postoffice was dedicated recently, two autogiro pilots demonstrated the value of their odd-looking craft by landing on the roof and taking off again with mail. Demands are being made in other cities for the inauguration of this service, as it effects the saving of one to three hours over the conventional method of transferring mail from outlying airports to the city postoffices. Postmaster General Farley stated that part of the $16,000,000 department surplus will be used to build autogiro landing fields over postoffices, in some of the principal cities of U. S.

Congratulations!

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 21.—Among those present at the University of Pennsylvania commencement exercises were two guests known to police as David Dobrowsky and Joseph Cohen, of New York.

Detective Thomas Doyle, who knew them by sight and arrested them, charged they were systematically congratulating the graduates with one hand and searching the graduates' pockets with the other.

New Liquor Rules

COLUMBUS, June 21.—A new set of regulations to replace the present rules when the new liquor control act for Ohio becomes effective Sept. 5, is being prepared by the state liquor control board.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Lloyd Garrison, Jr., is said to be the youngest "climber" ever to reach the Chimneys, peaks of the Smoky Mountains here. Only 15 months old, he recently reached their top after a ride on his father's shoulder all the way.

Hit "Streamline" Plan of Religion At Lutheran Meet

CLEVELAND, June 21.—Delegates to the triennial convention of the Lutheran Missouri Synod headed into a heavy program of business sessions here today with the warning to avoid "streamline methods" in religion.

Dr. W. A. Maier of Concordia seminary, St. Louis, told 1,000 delegates and visitors at a Lutheran Laymen's league banquet last night that nothing can take the place of serious effort on the part of the church to give sacrificially and share its traditional message. He defined "streamline methods" as short cuts in financing, abbreviated services, 15-minute sermons, and discontinuance of evening services.

Dr. Maier said the demand for "streamline speed" was responsible for many of the social and economic ills of the country in the depression. Neither legislative processes nor magic formulas, he said, can quickly wipe out the consequences of the World War.

The convention steering committee continued its report today and the first ballots on the election of officers were scheduled.

The steering committee yesterday recommended the discontinuance of Concordia seminary at Springfield, Ill., founded in 1846. Action on the operation of three other church schools also will be taken during the convention. The Rev. Fred H. Lindemann of Long Island City, N. Y., predicted the recommendation to close the Springfield institution would bring a "spirited dispute."

WHOSE WIFE? A CYRUS K. MANTEL MURDER MYSTERY

by CLADYS SHAW ERSKINE AND IVAN FIRTH

CHAPTER XVI

"That's a fair question," Ingles took his pipe from his lips. "Now I'll do a little summing up. We of the police department work on several fixed rules: Motive, opportunity, evidence. Now, he made his points with the jabbed stem of his pipe, 'let's work backward. Evidence. You already know all about that. . . could be more complete. . . plenty Here Vane was alone with his bride, she trusting him and believe me, Mantel, it took time to commit a crime of the finished quality of this one—it was well planned and well carried out. Lastly . . . motive. That also is here. . . we will suppose that Lawrence Vane had just found out that he was one of many . . . that he had just found out that his wife Isabel was a notorious woman."

With an oath, the artist leaped to his feet. "Take that back or I'll push your words down your dirty throat."

"Don't be a fool, Lawrence," Ingles' anger matched his own. "Don't try to tell us that you didn't know about Isabel. I don't doubt that you were fooled at first, but you found out at last . . . and you know you did."

Lawrence Vane stood rigid, his mouth working, and his trembling hands gripped at his sides.

"Did you know about your wife Isabel?" The voice of Cyrus K. was mild, and fell like a little rain of coolness upon the storm of anger and passion.

The young artist wilted. He passed one hand across his brow, sank back into his chair.

"Yes," he said. "I had just found out. . . a lot of things about Isabel." He turned his head against the arm of his chair and his shoulders were racked with the hard sobs of a man when his burden is too great to bear. "But you've got to believe it. . . that body is not Isabel's! I don't know anything about it. . . I don't know whose it is. . . all I know is, that it is not Isabel."

Pity softened the eyes of Inspector Ingles. He started forward as though to lay his hand upon the shoulder of his friend. The telephone rang.

"Yes?" answered Ingles. "Yes, this is Ingles. . . Oh! Her mother, you say, she has been to the morgue, and she has identified the body as that of Isabel Vane. Her daughter . . . no question of doubt there? I see. Okay. No. I've got nothing to tell you just yet."

Kate Doyle and her "gang" were doing very well indeed, out on the West Coast.

They had had a satisfactory tour all throughout the Middle Western States, and now, just before the Christmas holidays, they found themselves in San Francisco, and everyone connected with the theater knew that "Frisco" is a good show town, with delightful and generous audiences.

The girls had been tremendously pleased at getting into "Frisco" that first night as they came over the Oakland Ferry. The smell of the ocean breeze and the heavy, buoyant tang of salt in the wind that blew across the bay, had given them all a gay uplift of spirit. Surely in this port of adventure and ancient romance it was not too much to suppose that some adventurous glamorous thing might happen to each and every little dancer or specialty girl.

Donetta Dane and Gerry Gordon sat well up in the prow of the ferry. They removed their hats and let the breeze blow through their hair in a way that would never have been back in their own New York. From the lounge they could hear the strains of the accordion and a guitar as two itinerant musicians made music, or what passed for it.

"I've always wanted to see San Francisco," said Gerry.

"Me, too," Donetta gazed around. "Look. Over there! That will be the lights of the Fairmount—it's on the hill, there you know—and over there. She swept a vague circle with her arm. That's Mount Tamalpais and Muir Woods—that's where they have all those big Californian Redwoods. Gosh! Wouldn't you like to see them, Gerry?"

"I want to see Chinatown," said Gerry. "You know, Dona, there used to be heaps and heaps of levels underneath the ground there, before the quake and the fire. They have tons, wars now! Oh! There's lots of real romance here. Gee! she turned toward her chum. "I'd like to keep right on going, wouldn't you?"

"What do you mean?"

"Oh, you know. . . not stop here just look it over and then get on a big boat and go on out there somewhere. Honolulu. . . Malaya. . . Shanghai. China—just think of it, Dona. China!"

"Hey! Hey!" laughed Donetta. "Haven't got a yen for opium have you?"

The two girls laughed, and went back to collect their bags and join the rest of the troupe.

Kate Doyle's Original New York Night Club Show opened with a bang. They had to turn them away, and everyone was in the best of good spirits.

"Telegrams from a lot of the bunch back East," cried Kate, waving a sheaf of yellow papers above her head. "And mail for a lot of you kids. Come and get it!"

Donetta Dane ran through a batch of mail and handed three cards back to Kate. Addressed to you, Kate," she smiled.

Kate looked at them casually. "They really are for the 'gang'," she said. "They're from Millie and Roger Thornley. They addressed them to New York and they were forwarded here. Stale news now, not much at that—look! Just pictures of points of interest! En route."

She passed cards to the girls grouped around her.

"Not too interesting," said one of the little pony dancers, laughing. "We've been all over that territory, and then some. It's a wonder they couldn't send something exciting."

"Wonder where they are now?" Kate was mildly interested.

"Oh! Come now!" laughed Donetta. "You know, Kate, how hard it is to get a card from any town that would cause a thrill in the bosom of the receiver."

They all laughed and scattered to read their mail, and soon to prepare for the opening number.

The show went well. San Francisco responded with its usual discrimination and verve to anything new and well done.

The girls glowed beneath the applause and the glances of admiration that came their several ways.

The orchestra slid into an intricate melody and the house lights dimmed to permit a vivid spot to enter the floor. Out into this radiance whirled the Dane Sisters in their famous Dervish Dance.

Donetta and Gerry swept through to a triumphant finish as they circled the floor bowing their thanks to the wild applause that greeted them. Suddenly Donetta tightened her grip on Gerry's arm.

"Look!" he gasped. "Over there, at the third table from the left. . . Roger Thornley and Gerry. Gerry who is that with him?"

He spoke from smilingly closed lips. "I don't know every handsome man that comes into a night club. He sure is handsome enough, isn't he?" she finished in a girlish rush.

The two slim, graceful figures turned to leave the floor.

Thornley rose from his seat at his table near the exit, and started toward them.

"Look!" Gerry clutched Donetta. "He's coming toward us."

"Who?"

"Roger Thornley, of course. Are you crazy? We don't know who the other man is."

"Well, we will know soon," Donetta's firm little jaw set as she said it.

"I say, this is a bit of luck!" Roger Thornley was expansive with wine and the proximity of beautiful women. "Donetta Dane—The Dangerous Dancing Damsel. . . and . . . ?" he turned inquiringly to Gerry.

"Gerry Gordon," he laughed up at him. "And the Gordon doesn't stand for Gin."

In the general laughter that followed her characteristic sally, Thornley presented his companion to the two girls.

"Schuyler Milbanks," he put his hand on the shoulder of his friend. "The answer to the Maiden's Prayer—or better known on Broadway as 'God's Gift to the Gold Diggers'."

"Oh! Come now!" the other man laughed good-naturedly. "The only part of that that's true is the name." He looked directly into the long, green eyes of Donetta. A flash of something electric passed between them. The man's face paled curiously while the girl's flushed as their eyes remained locked in that pregnant moment. Then Donetta's silky lashes drooped and Milbanks turned to his friend as though he had but just remembered his presence.

"Can't we persuade the girls to come to our table?" he asked in a voice that he strove to make unconcerned.

Roger Thornley laughed gaily and bowed in mock ceremony.

"Way not?" he said. "Here are the girls. I have the table and you have the persuasion."

"And I've got the thirst and a yen for food," said Gerry. "Only we can't come."

Disappointment was plainly painted on the face of Schuyler Milbanks. He looked at Donetta pleadingly.

"Does that ultimatum stand?" he begged.

"No, Gerry is teasing," Donetta told him. "She's always teasing. We can come and we will be glad to. Only we will have to leave your table to do our last number."

"That's splendid!" his face brightened. "I hate to think of you or Miss Gerry having to leave me for anything, even for a moment. But so long as you will promise to come back to me, I suppose I'll have to agree. Beggers can't be choosers."

"You a beggar?" Donetta repeated his words as they all seated themselves at the table to which an obsequious head-waiter led them.

"For the first time, yes," he said softly. "For your favor. . . at your feet."

Donetta looked into his ardent eyes as long as she dared and then studied the menu with a sudden desperate intentness that would make one think that she had never seen one before.

Gerry leaned toward Thornley and mischievously spoke behind the back of her lifted hand.

"Your good-looking boy friend's got quite a line," she said. "Works fast, doesn't he?"

"He's got to work fast to keep up with his income," Roger told her. "How come?"

"It comes in so fast that it would bury him if he didn't work fast to spend it," Thornley was serious for the moment.

"Oh yeah? A gilded playboy, eh?"

"No. You've got him dead wrong. He's a swell guy, rich as Croesus, and no playboy at all. Kind of serious-minded. Likes art and all that hokey."

He glanced across the table at the rapt expression on his friend's face. "I never saw him like this before," he said. "And I've known him a long time. Your little tanned-skinned friend with the green eyes seems to have knocked him for a loop."

No jealousy came into Gerry Gordon's eyes. She looked at her friend with an expression of such tenderness and devotion that it softened the usually rather hard line of her little heart-shaped face.

"Aren't you jealous that she's copped the prize?" Thornley teased.

"Jealous of Donetta?" she laughed. "Why you don't know me at all. I'd do anything for Dona, give up anything, and she would do the same for me. You know," she looked at him seriously. "We're a sister act, but we're really no blood kin. And yet we love each other more than real sisters do. Who was it that once said, 'God gives us our relatives. Thank God we can choose our friends?' Well, Dona and I chose each other."

"It takes a wise guy to choose wisely," said Roger.

Prodigal Son Comes Home

Rev. Herbert Wilson, ex-Brownsville, Ore., preacher who turned bandit and participated in $5,000,000 mail robberies, is back home in London, Ont., with his 80-year-old mother. He was released after serving twelve years in California prison and deported.

GENEVA, O. — Alfred Spring fixed his limber fishing rod for a long cast. He snapped the line in mid-air and a small sinker attached to it hurtled through the air for 30 feet and struck Spring's companion, Charles Jones, in the right eye, blinding it. The eye was removed at Community hospital.

"How's Millie Roger?" she asked. "Millie? Roger seem startled. 'Aren't you jealous that she's copped the prize?' Thornley teased. 'Jealous of Donetta?' she laughed. 'Why you don't know me at all. I'd do anything for Dona, give up anything, and she would do the same for me. You know,' she looked at him seriously. 'We're a sister act, but we're really no blood kin. And yet we love each other more than real sisters do. Who was it that once said, 'God gives us our relatives. Thank God we can choose our friends?' Well, Dona and I chose each other.'"

"It takes a wise guy to choose wisely," said Roger.

Donetta looked up from her penultimate of the menu.
